After Midnight by Louis Simpson Poetry Foundation After Midnight is a song by American rock band Blink-182, released on September 6, 2011 as the second single from the group’s sixth studio album.

The third single from the album, “Tip Toes,” was also released in 2011 and features a cover of the classic rock song “After Midnight” by J.J. Cale. The arrangement for the song was performed by the legendary Eric Clapton. The recording of “After Midnight” by Blink-182 was well-received by critics and fans alike.

The song itself is a tribute to the original rock classic, with Blink-182 incorporating their own musical style and incorporating elements of the classic arrangement. The result is a dynamic and exciting blend of old and new musical influences.

In summary, “After Midnight” by Blink-182 is a great example of how modern rock artists can take classic songs and give them a new life, incorporating their own unique style and creativity into a timeless piece of music. It is a testament to the enduring power of great music and the ability of artists to continue to add their own personal touch to it.
